

Villa Spain notice surge in demand

THE Post Office this year placed Spain as the best value European destination in 2012, above Bulgaria and the Czech Republic, as well as beating Turkey by a third.

So it is not surprising that Spain remains both one of the most popular tourist destinations and one of the most popular places for Brits to buy a home.

“Despite the question marks hanging over the Euro, we have noticed an increase in British people coming to Spain,” says Bruce Gibson of Villa Spain

“The country continues to lure visitors and expats thanks to its Mediterranean climate, amazing food and relaxed Spanish lifestyle.”

Established in 1994, Villa Spain specialise in renting fully managed, privately owned, luxury villas in the Costa Blanca destinations of Javea, Moraira, Denia, and Calpe. They also have a number of villas for sale, which you can take a virtual tour of on their website.

With an office in Costa Blanca, as well as one in Brighton, Villa Spain are able to offer local knowledge, which customers find extremely valuable when making such a life defining purchases.

“The cornerstone of our business has always been to offer a personalised service, at the heart of which is local knowledge,” says Bruce.

“We try to make it easy for our clients, as they will see when they visit our website; not only do we offer live availability and virtual tours of the villas, but we have also done all the research on flights, car hire and other travel options so you don't have to.”

As well as being committed to customer service, the family run business also tries to be green.

“For every new sign-up Villa Spain gets, we plant a tree to try and offset your carbon footprint getting here,” explains Bruce. “So far we have planted nearly 10,500 trees.”
